DR. ANDRE MIGOT — One of France's most distinguished authors, explorers, physicians and photographers is making his first American Tour in February and March 1960. He has conducted many world famous expeditions into Red China and Tibet and on into the Himalayas. He is an outstanding authority on this far off area of the world. He has written more than twenty books on this part of the world and the following have been translated into English:

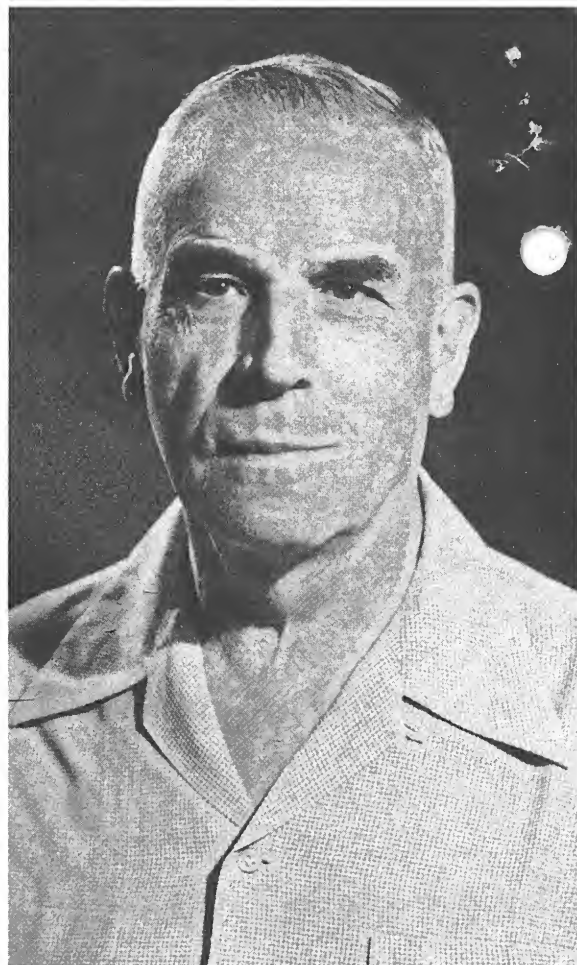

TIBETAN MARCHES
THE LONELY SOUTH
THIN EDGE OF THE WORLD
A GREAT DISCIPLE OF BUDDHA
POPULAR TIBETAN TALES

A few of the highlights of the film include three thousand years of Chinese history — The Cult of Heaven and its temples, the Yellow River Country and its ancient cities. — the Ming Tombs, the Great Wall. Secret life in a Tibetan Monastery, a Village of Lamas and Sorcerers — The Temples of the Golden Roofs. — The magic rites of the offer of fire and the mysterious office of the lamas (with first sound recordings). From Canton to Shanghai to Peking with the typical villages between. The life of the people today, sightseers, coolies, children, merchants, artisans — Chungking, side streets and palaces.

The New Industrial China — Cooperatives and State Farms — The An Sham combined metallurgical factories. A technical University.

Leisure hours of the workers; sports, Culture and water spas.

National festival of the First of October and its impressive parade with soldiers, sailors, workers, monks, lamas, actors, acrobats and National minorities.
